

Carolyn J. Crandall, MD, MS

Professor of Medicine
David Geffen School of Medicine at University of California, Los Angeles

Dr. Crandall was born on 1/10/65 in San Diego, CA and has spent most of her life in Los Angeles, CA. She received her M.D. degree at UCLA School of Medicine (Los Angeles, CA) in 1991. She completed her internal medicine residency training at UCLA as well and joined the UCLA faculty immediately thereafter. In 2004 she completed a Masters of Science in Clinical Research degree at UCLA. She practices at the Iris Cantor-UCLA Women's Health Center at UCLA and is Professor of Medicine at UCLA. Her research and clinical interests are focused on the intersection among menopause, menopausal hormone therapy, breast cancer, and osteoporosis. She is an editorial reviewer for multiple medical journals. She teaches internal medicine residents as well as medical students. She frequently lectures regarding menopause, menopausal hormone therapy, and osteoporosis.

Her other interests include music and linguistics. She speaks fluent French.